

Crystal Ann Jenkins

Associate Director

Summary

Crystal is a highly experienced Quantity Surveyor with over 20 years in the construction industry, delivering new build and refurbishment projects across housing, retail, commercial, leisure, industrial, and education sectors.

She began her career with a major main contractor, managing developments ranging in value from £250k to £60m, working from tender inception through to final account. She then moved into consultancy, acting as Employer's Agent and Contract Administrator, representing developers and guiding projects from land acquisition through RIBA Stages 1–7.

Crystal has a proven track record of successfully integrating into client teams and providing professional, commercially astute advice. Her project leadership combines technical expertise with a collaborative approach to achieve positive outcomes.

In 2024, Crystal joined Overford, where she continues to advise developers and play an active role on site, while also expanding her practice into dispute resolution. She prepares and manages claims, represents parties in adjudication, defends claims, and negotiates settlements, helping clients achieve effective resolution of disputes.

Crystal holds the RICS Diploma in Adjudication and the RICS Expert Witness Certificate, reflecting her commitment to excellence in dispute resolution and expert practice. Alongside her consultancy work, Crystal plays an active role in professional bodies. She is North West Convenor of the Adjudication Society, contributes to the RICS Expert Group updating the QS Black Book with Global Construction Standards, and has recently signed a contract to author content for RICS isurv. Crystal also volunteers her time as a sitting magistrate in the Family Court.
